 Product type	Wüstenrot Wohnsparen Building society savings ("Bausparen")
General description of how the product works / disbursement profile	The saver enters into a building savings contract with a specified amount of savings. The building savings contract has two phases. During the savings phase, the saver provides the building society with funds, which bear interest. He thereby builds up equity. As soon as the minimum contractually agreed savings balance has been reached and kept in the account for a sufficient period of time, the contract will reach maturity. Upon allocation, the credit balance can be disbursed to the saver. Additionally – subject to a successful collateral and credit assessment – the saver will be entitled to be granted a building society loan for building projects relating to residential properties, which loan will amount to the difference between the target amount of the savings and the actual savings balance. As the debit interest rates for the loan are fixed at the beginning of the contract, they are independent of any interest rate fluctuations affecting the capital market.
Accessibility / Factors determining the market price (during the term of the contract)	Credit balance: Upon allocation under the building savings contract, the saver is granted access to the savings balance in his account. Prior to allocation of the funds, the saver may cancel the building savings contract at any time subject to six months prior notice. In this case, the saver ceases to be entitled to the building society loan. Loan: Subsequent to allocation, the saver may withdraw funds from the building society loan (subject to successful collateral and credit assessment).
